By WARREN ROGERS JR.
WASHINGTON (AP) — American officials predicted today Russia probably will accept President Eisenhower's proposal to start negotiations Oct. 31 on a world-wide system to prevent sneak nuclear weapons tests.

Eisenhower offered Friday to suspend U.S. nuclear tests for at least one year, provided such negotiations got under way.

His only other condition was that Russia continue its 4½-month-old halt in Soviet tests. The Russians announced the halt after completing a test series.

In a statement and a note to the Kremlin, Eisenhower called for talks in New York under United Nations auspices. Results would be reported through Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld to the U.N. General Assembly and the Security Council.

In Russia, radio Moscow and the Tass news agency reported Eisenhower's proposal without comment. There was no comment from Soviet officials.

In Congress, both Republicans and Democrats voiced praise for the offer.

But Rep. Chet Molfield (D-Calif.) objected strongly to a part of the Eisenhower statement that left the way open for resumption of tests unless, among other things, there was satisfactory progress toward disarmament. Molfield said such a condition could kill the plan.

The scientists agreed it was technically possible to create a worldwide system of inspection Nations, reportedly about 180, to make sure nobody cheated on any agreement to ban nuclear tests. Britain also offered to suspend its tests after a projected series is completed this fall, and to participate in detailed, diplomatic talks to set up the monitoring system conceived by the scientists at Geneva.

It was learned authoritatively that this was the thinking behind the Eisenhower proposal.

An end to nuclear tests is no disarmament measure in itself. But it may provide an opening wedge to achieve genuine disarmament, Eisenhower said. U.S. tests might be resumed after one year unless a monitoring system was ripening and unless there were prospects of agreement on such disarmament measures as a cut-off in atomic production, reduction in atomic-hydrogen stockpiles and troop cutbacks.

Finds Female, Child Labor Laws Observed

Child and female labor law regulations are being observed in Hope according to Cora Evans, investigator for the State Department of Labor Laws, who worked Hope last week.

"I did find a few minor violations and a few overtime violations that were cheerfully corrected," Miss Evans said. "I feel that the business people are very law-abiding in regard to labor."

A digest of the Child Labor Laws — 1. Children under 14 cannot be employed except during school vacations. They may be employed by their parents or guardians in business owned or controlled by them. 2. No child under 16 should be employed or permitted to work for more than six days in any one week nor more than eight hours any day or before 6 a. m. or after 7 p. m. Neither should they be employed without an employment certificate. (Application for certificate may be had from the State Department of Labor without charge.)

3. Boy under 18 may not be employed for more than six days in any week, nor more than 84 hours a week, nor more than 10 hours a day or before 6 a. m. or after 10 p. m.

4. No female under 18 should be employed before 7 a. m. or after 9 p. m.

5. No female shall be employed for more than eight hours in any one day or more than six consecutive days in any one week. She may be employed nine hours a day provided she receives compensation for the ninth hour at the rate of one and a half times regular rate of pay. More than nine hours a day is violation of the female labor law. This does not apply to domestic, agricultural or horticultural employees.

6. Minimum penalty for violation of the female and child labor law is $100.

The Story of a Local Man and His Good Luck Fraternity Ring

By Mary Anita Laseter

May I tell you a story? It's a true story about a ring, a war and two G. I.'s.

One of the men in the story is Edward Jack McCabe of Lafayette, La., whose mother, Mrs. E. J. McCabe, lives in Hope. A few weeks ago he received a Sigma Chi fraternity ring which he had lost-off, the coast of Morocco in North Africa, 18 years ago!

Another, G. I., had found it, and, since it fit him, he had worn it. Through battles in many parts of the world, the G. I. wore the ring "for good luck." That is just what it brought him, too, and when he came back to the States, he put it away carefully with other war mementoes.

Then, he forgot it.

By accident, he came across it recently and his curiosity was roused afresh regarding the real owner of the ring. Was he still alive? It so, where was he? Who was he? It had belonged to someone with the initials, "E. J. Mc."

That much he knew for sure, for the initials were on the ring. He thought he knew the approximate time it had probably been lost, which was during an American landing on that particular North African beach. Those facts were a pretty good start.

So, he wrote the national headquarters of Sigma Chi and sent them the ring. When the records were checked, it was discovered that there were only two Sigma Chi men in the United States who fit both the initials and the time element. It wasn't hard to determine which was the owner of the ring. The fraternity returned the ring to Jack and notified the finder.

Today, the man who found the ring is the State Archivist in North Carolina, and Jack McCabe isn't sure which he values the most—the correspondence he has had with his new-found friend or the returned ring.

Anyway, Jack is wearing the ring now. And he says it is "for good luck."

Army Announces Reserve Policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army announced today a reserve call-up policy aimed to put the most recently trained reservists on active duty first in time of national emergency.

The plan applies to 800,000 officers and enlisted men in the ready reserve who are not members of organized units or of the National Guard. Excluded are individuals who have been given key mobilization assignments and major members of research and development training detachments.

Under the policy, reservists called to duty will report directly to an assigned unit instead of to a reception center.

Area and corps commanders are given authority for keeping records of the capabilities and special skills of reservists so the men can be assigned to units where they will be most needed.

First priority to receive reinforcements from the reserve pool will be assigned to active Army or organized reserve units selected for early deployment.

The Army order warns reservists that in event of a national emergency they may get less than 30 days notice to report for active duty.

NAACP Seeks Quick Supreme Court Ruling

By KARL R. BAUMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court Justice Charles Evans Whitaker may hold the answer to whether racial integration must be resumed at Little Rock's Central High School when it reopens Sept. 2.

But the answer will not come before next Thursday, probably later.

It was uncertain whether Whitaker would rule alone, or with other members of the nine-man court.

The National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People Friday asked Whitaker for an order removing all legal barriers to immediate re-entry of Negro pupils into Central High, a focal point in the far-ranging integration controversy.

The NAACP action seeks, in part, to set aside an order of the U.S. Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals in St. Louis that would delay integration at the Arkansas high school until the Supreme Court has ruled on the main issues in the case.

The petition was directed to Whitaker because the full court is in summer recess, until Oct. 6, and he has jurisdiction over the Eighth Circuit, which includes Arkansas.

With Whitaker on his way to Los Angeles, Thurston Marshall of New York, an attorney for the NAACP, filed the petition with the office of the Supreme Court clerk.

The court's deputy clerk, Edmund P. Cullinan, Friday night sent the petition via air mail special delivery to Whitaker in Los Angeles, where the justice plans to attend the American Bar Assn. convention.

Whitaker, who had been in touch with the clerk's office earlier in the day, directed that attorneys for the Little Rock school board be advised they have until noon next Thursday, Pacific Coast Time, to file papers in opposition.

Marshall mailed copies of the NAACP petition to the school board even before he filed it with the Supreme Court.

"During a train stop at Ogden, Utah, Whitaker said he will have to examine the NAACP documents before deciding what he will do.

Court Rebuff Lacked Only Single Vote

By JOHN CHADWICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — By a one-vote margin, Congress members who wanted to hand the Supreme Court a major legislative rebuff have been defeated.

The bitter battle reached a climax in the Senate Thursday night. A 41-40 vote killed a bill designed to prevent the court from striking down state laws not in direct conflict with "federal laws" on the same subject.

The vote came on a motion of Sen. John F. Carroll (D-Colo.) to send the measure back to the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Twenty-seven Democrats and 14 Republicans teamed up to put the motion across. Voting in opposition were 17 Democrats and 23 Republicans. The count was tied at 40-40 when Sen. Wallace F. Bennett (R-Utah) cast the decisive vote.

The House passed the bill last month by a 240-155 vote, ignoring warnings that President Eisenhower might veto it.

The bill provided that federal laws should not supersede state laws in the same field unless Congress said so or unless there was a direct and irreconcilable conflict between them.

It also contained a provision specifically restoring to the states the right to enforce their own anti-subversive laws—a section designed to overcome the effect of the Supreme Court's decision in the Silver Nelson case.

Nelson, a Pennsylvania Communist leader, was convicted under a state sedition law. The Supreme Court reversed the conviction on the ground that Congress had assumed jurisdiction in the field by enacting the Smith Act and other anti-Communist laws. The sedition laws of 42 states were invalidated by the ruling.

Before Thursday night's vote, the Senate was locked in dispute for three days over legislation aimed at recent decisions of the Supreme Court.

During the battle, it killed off a 49-41 vote a bill to curb the review powers of the Supreme Court and to undo the effects of decisions in several Communist cases.

Hogan's seven-year term will expire July 1, 1962.

Arkansas Escapees Caught in N. M.

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Two escapees from the criminal ward of the Arkansas State Hospital were captured near here yesterday.

Franklin Bosnick, 30, of Moro Bay, Ark., and Bobby Milam, 22, of Hummock, Ark., were arrested by state police.

They escaped at gunpoint from the hospital last Saturday night, along with Gordon Sullivan, 16, and Charles Sellers, 16, both of Pine Bluff.

Sullivan returned to the hospital voluntarily shortly after the break and Sellers was captured in a Pine Bluff movie theater last Sunday.

Federal agents said Bosnick and Milam would be charged with interstate transportation of a car stolen at Memphis. They were riding in the car when arrested.

Officers at the county jail where the two were held said they indicated they would attempt to stand trial on the federal charge rather than be extradited to Arkansas.

Every Nation Gets Its Neck Out of Wringer

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — They all got their necks out of the wringer — the West, the Soviet Union and the Arabs — when the United Nations Thursday night approved 80-0 the Arabs' plan for peace in the Middle East.

They voted themselves a graceful way out of an embarrassing situation. The only question left: Will the plan work? Or does it just provide a calm before a new storm breaks in the Middle East?

The plan, which the United States also approved, did not contain specifically a single one of the six proposals President Eisenhower made to the U.N. earlier this month to bring peace to the Middle East.

But at least he can feel some of his suggestions "are in the plan," if only in a general way. In the end, although the plan is an easy way out for everyone, it may result in loss of the West's last, lingering grip on the area.

The Arabs — humiliated and angered by the presence of American troops in Lebanon and British forces in Jordan — can now claim credit for getting them out by the ingenuity of their plan. The Soviet Union wanted the troops out. And now they seem sure to go.

And it gets the United States and Britain off a hot spot. Even though invited in by Lebanon's President Chamoun and Jordan's King Hussein, they've shown signs of wanting out ever since they saw the world's bad reaction to what they did.

But there's no evidence anything in the Middle East has been solved or settled except for paying the way for American-British withdrawal. The Arab plan, or resolution, left it up to Secretary General Hammarskjöld to arrange Continued on Page Two

1,200 to Apply, Will Take 250

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Supt. David B. Ray Jr., of the Arkansas Children's Colony, now under construction at Conway, told the "College Board" yesterday he expected 1,000 to 1,200 applications for the first 250 vacancies at the project for mentally retarded children.

Ray said he already had received about 600 preliminary applications seeking information about enrollment at the cottage-type institution.

Evaluation of children to be admitted already is under way.

Ray said about 75 per cent of the initial construction at the Colony had been completed. He said the first unit of eight cottages, and other facilities ought to be finished by mid-1959.

Each cottage will accommodate 32 children.

"It will probably be September before we actually get in operation," Ray said.

Hiring of professional staff members will start next spring.

Police Group Elects a New President

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — H. H. Higgs of El Dorado was elected president of the Arkansas Municipal Police Assn. here yesterday. He succeeds Norman Young of Pine Bluff.

Other new officers include Clarence Childress of Hot Springs, first vice president and Bill Knox of Fort Smith, second vice president.

The association opened its annual meeting yesterday with about 200 persons in attendance.

Klipshorn to Compete at Brussels Exposition

Another international battle will be fought out at the Brussels Exposition — the last week of August. But it will be a battle of sounds instead of one of architectural displays and political propaganda. And deeply involved in it will be a Southwest manufacturing firm.

The firm is Klipsch and Associates of Hope, Arkansas, whose business is the manufacturing of high fidelity loud speaker systems.

It all started when two men from Boston, William Bell and Donald Davis, visited the exposition earlier in the summer. Being specialists in high fidelity sound reproduction, they saw and heard the demonstrations of other countries who have excelled in the development of sound reproducing equipment but were shocked to find that the high fidelity component industry of the United States was not represented in the U. S. Pavilion. Feeling confident that this country has no peer in the field, they decided to throw down the Hi-Fi glove to the world.

Shortly after their return to the States they got busy, cut quickly through red tape in Washington, and arranged to put on a demonstration in the U.S. pavilion at the Fair of American achievements. They were given the 1,000 seat auditorium for the event, from August 26 to September 2.

For this, they assembled a sound reproducing system such as hi-fi fans dream of. Components are included which are representative of the finest American craftsmanship. That is where Klipsch got into the international battle of sounds.

Their "Klipschorn" corner horn loudspeaker system, while marketed all over the world, has never before had a formal public demonstration in Europe.

"Two Klipschorn" speakers have been flown from Hope to Brussels for the occasion. These loudspeakers have achieved fame for their ability to reproduce every tone from the lowest pedal note of a pipe organ to the highest whistle of triangles, and to do it with practically no distortion. They accomplish this feat by utilizing the walls and floor of a room corner.

Their designer, Paul W. Klipsch, is an unassuming man who prefers the quiet life of the South Arkansas City. He was sent to Hope during World War II by the United States Army to serve as electronics chief of the ordnance proving grounds there. All through the war he continued his experiments with loudspeakers which began in the thirties. And after the war, he acquired some of the government buildings on the base for his factory. Throughout these years he has racked up a long list of patents and has been a prolific contributor to audio journals.

While his major contribution is the corner horn system he has conducted research into many other aspects of sound reproduction. One of his most recent developments is three-channel reproduction from two-channel tapes and discs. This will be a feature at the Brussels demonstration.

At his plant, loudspeaker systems are practically hand made and are individually tested under Mr. Klipsch's personal supervision.

If the "Sound Battle" of Brussels is conceded to be an American victory, and the prestige of the American high fidelity industry is maintained, much of the credit will be due to Paul Klipsch, his research laboratory and plant located on the outskirts of Hope, Arkansas.

Colleges Split Contributions

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Checks have been mailed to the seven member colleges of the Arkansas Foundation of Associated Colleges as their share in contributions received from 100 firms and individuals between May 15 and Aug. 15.

The colleges and the amounts they received are:

Arkansas College, Batesville, $1,626; College of the Ozarks, Clarksville, $9,193; Harding College, Searcy, $4,300; Hendrix College, Conway, $6,608; John Brown University, Siloam Springs, $1,659; Ouachita Baptist College, Arkadelphia, $4,212; Southern Baptist College, Walnut Ridge, $1,607.

It was announced yesterday that retired Army Col. Cletos O. Bennett of Fayetteville has been named director of research and special projects for the foundation.

Bennett, 55, is a 1926 engineering graduate of the University of Arkansas.

They Kept Walking Through That Door

EAST PATTERSON, N.J. (AP) — Two easily visible six-foot plants have been placed in front of the large glass panels that frame the door of the municipal building here. Three persons had been cut in the last few weeks when they walked through the panels by mistake.

The organization voted to hold next year's meeting at Fort Smith.

Millwee Admits He Is Beaten

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Associate Justice Minor W. Millwee last night acknowledged his close defeat by Jim Johnson in their race for a Supreme Court post.

He said he would not contest the election.

"Official returns indicate that a slight majority of those who voted in the second Democratic primary prefer my opponent as justice of the Supreme Court," Millwee said.

"I am deeply grateful for the loyalty and support of nearly the same number who fell differently about the matter.

"My plans right now are to take a badly needed rest for a few days with old friends in Sevier County."

Millwee said he thought there were "definitely irregularities in the election" Aug. 12 but felt it was not advisable to contest the outcome.

At Graceland, Johnson had no comment.

Certified returns showed that Johnson polled 142,027 votes to Millwee's 140,020.

Probers Seek to Link Baker to Truck Union

By ROBERT D. NOVAK

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate investigators will delve next week into links between Teamster muscleman Robert (Barney) Baker and one of the powers of the giant trucking union — Vice President Harold Gibbons.

Baker, 300-pound Teamster organizer, Thursday completed almost two days of testimony before the Senate Rackets Committee, ranging from the comic to the dramatic.

A perspiring Baker left the witness stand after Chairman John L. McClellan (D-Ark.) called him a perjurer and counsel Robert F. Kennedy labeled him an associate of "underworld filth and the scum of the United States."

But with the hearings in recess Kennedy indicated today the ponderous ex-convict's troubles with the committee are not over. He told newsmen Baker would continue as a subject of testimony when hearings switch next Tuesday to Gibbons' activities in the St. Louis area.

The new phase of the inquiry into the giant Teamsters Union and its president, James R. Hoffa, will include a violence-packed St. Louis taxicab strike in 1953 and the part Baker allegedly played in it.

McClellan contended that Gibbons supplied Baker and other Teamster organizers with an arsenal of pistols and holsters to match during the strike. Baker swore, "That's not the truth as far as I'm concerned."

Baker has testified his rise in the union began after he met Gibbons in 1952 at a meeting in Washington of the Americans for Democratic Action, a self-styled liberal group.

Kennedy said next week's hearings also will probe Gibbons' controversial election last January as president of the St. Louis Joint Teamster Council, with Gibbons himself a possible witness at the end of the week.

Hoffa, a grim-faced, silent spectator in the hearing room this week, is not scheduled to return to the witness stand for at least another 10 days.

Baker Thursday loudly denied charges ranging from threats to murder to trafficking in stolen jewels. But he sheepishly admitted he might have bragged and told "little white lies" about being a close friend of New York Gov. Averell Harriman.

Although Baker swore "I don't sell no jewelry," the committee produced a surprise witness who told of seeing a fortune in gems in a Miami home where Baker lived with a blonde girl friend in 1955.

The witness, real estate man B. B. Bowers Jr. of Miami, said Mrs. Ruth Brougher, 44, once showed him nearly a quart of diamonds which he estimated were worth $75,000 to $100,000.

Mrs. Brougher, Baker's ex-sweetheart brought here from a Florida prison where she is serving a 15-year term for manslaughter, told the committee, "The only kind of jewelry I had in my possession was legitimate jewelry."

Long Declared Guilty, Sentence Is Suspended

EL DORADO, Ark. (AP) — Former County Treasurer Perry A. Long yesterday drew a 5-year prison sentence from a Union Circuit Court jury which found him guilty of misusing public funds. The sentence was suspended.

Judge Gus W. Jones passed sentence on the 42-year-old legless war veteran who had been indicted by the Union County Grand Jury after an audit showed $22,538 missing from Long's office.

Long heard the verdict, the jury's recommendation for a suspended sentence, and the judge's reading of the sentence without displaying emotion.

His trial on the grand jury's charge of misusing public money began Monday and crowds packed the court room each day.

Long, treasurer for 12 years before his suspension from office after the grand jury returned its indictment June 8, declared on the stand that he had never misappropriated public money.

He told Police April 16 that an unknown assailant attacked him in his office, bound and gagged him and escaped with about $20,000.

A bonding company reimbursed the state for the missing funds and later sued Long for recovery of the $22,538 shortage.

Arkansas officials sought and obtained a Louisiana court order for the return to El Dorado of Miss Barbara Ann Bennett, 26, of Shreveport, to testify at Long's trial. The officials said Long bought presents for her.

Miss Bennett testified that the former treasurer had made small loans to her and had taken her to night clubs and on hunting and fishing trips.

She attended the morning court session yesterday but was not observed by newsmen in the crowded court room when the sentence was handed down.

British Upset Over False Burglar Alarm

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP) — The burglar alarm went off accidentally at the home of Britain's crown jewels today, causing one of the greatest scares since Capt. Peter Blood swiped the royal gems nearly 300 years ago.

"The crown jewels are safe in the Tower of London," said a Scotland Yard official today. "They have not been stolen."

The official said the alarm was tripped by mistake.

"Intruders have entered the jewel house in the Tower of London," intoned the recorded voice on the alarm at London's central police headquarters.

That was enough to send the flying squad zooming over to the ancient bastion on the Thames. The alarm automatically dropped a 16-ton steel cage around the jewels.

"In this business," said the Yard man, "you can't take chances. The crown jewels stolen? Why it would be the story of the century — old boy."

Britain's crowns and royal regalia of incalculable value are on display in a circular glass case surrounded by a high picket fence. More than 300,000 people from all over the world view them annually.

Capt. Blood, a daring robber, almost got away with them. Dressed as clergyman, he and two associates gained entrance to the jewel house back in the 17th century.

With a few well-directed blows they knocked out the guards and pocketed some of the gems. They dropped half their booty though as they galloped off on wailing horses.

They were overtaken and all but one ruby were recovered. Later this was found in the pocket of one of the gang.

Two hundred years later a woman got her hand through the steel bars, and the glass and tried to yank out one of the many-jeweled crowns.

Russia Hints at a Higher Price for Gold

By K. C. THALER

United Press International LONDON (UPI) — Soviet Russia has thrown out inspired hints that she would favor a higher price for gold.

Moscow has refrained from making a definitive proposal so far as what the gold price should be, but has merely termed the present level as "artificial."

First deputy premier Anastas Mikoyan has been reported as saying that he would make the ruble convertible if the current "artificially low gold price" were lifted.

There was no indication whether, when and to what degree the Soviet authorities were prepared to a change of the price of gold.

But Soviet affairs experts considered the move yet another element in the Kremlin's versatile propaganda strategy.

The Kremlin undoubtedly is aware of United States opposition to a change of the price of gold at this stage for fear that it might unleash inflationary trends.

On the other hand, the non-American gold-producing countries are in favor of a change.

Exploits Elements of Conflict Soviet propaganda has rarely lost time in exploiting any element of conflict in the Western world. Just how much she will be exploiting the gold issue remains an open question.

The fact is that Russia has been come one of the world's leading gold producers and that she holds quantities of gold second only to the United States. This gives her a special position.

The growing importance of Russia as a gold power was spotlighted in the progressive appearance in the last two years of large quantities of hammer-and-sickle gold. Considerable gold cargoes were flown from Russia to the West and sold in London and on European markets.

Latest estimates said that the Soviet has increased her gold output from a mere 5 million ounces in 1947 to well over 27 million ounces today. This equals roughly the production of South Africa, one of the world's leading gold producers.

At the same time, Russia has become a large-scale gold exporter.

Last year she was said to have exported little less than half her output (7,500,000 ounces); that was twice the amount she exported the year before (1956).

Reserves A Guarded Secret Moscow's gold reserves are a well-guarded secret. Best available estimates put them at about one-third of the U.S. reserves and nearly as high as the combined reserves of the rest of the world.

Premier Josef Stalin personally ordered an increase of gold production in the nineteen-thirties.

During his reign hammer-and-sickle gold rarely appeared outside the Soviet Union.

But the large-scale production boom is of more recent date.

Vast goldfields were reported to be operating in the Kolyma region in the northeast of Siberia.

More recently a new center of gold mining was reported at Irkutsk, in the far east of the country.

The appearance recently of Soviet gold in European markets has been ascribed to large-scale purchases of Western goods and the replenishment of Communist propaganda funds abroad.

Some experts believe the Kremlin now holds sufficient gold to be able to throw gold markets into confusion if its propaganda strategy were to call for it.

But so far its gold transactions have been marked by caution rather than speculative action.

There is a difference in working hours between U. S. Congress and the Canadian House of Commons in Ottawa. Congress meets at noon. In Canada the Commons take a longer lunch usually meets in mid-afternoon — but it does not stop work until about midnight.

DOROTHY DIX

Dear Dorothy Dix:

My husband and I have worked hard all our lives to establish a home and give our son a good education. He is now married and has his own family. We've also been putting a bit of money aside for a long-dreamed-of trip, which we can now make a reality. But we don't know whether this is to be or not to be. You see, there has been a shakeup in the company here my son is employed and he has been offered a partnership. This is a very sound firm and we know he'd make a most successful partner. The money he needs to finance the deal is just about equal to the amount we've saved for our trip. He hasn't even suggested that we give him the money, but the question has certainly risen in our own minds. My husband and I have given many hours, thousands of words in discussion, and much thought to whether we should take the trip or give the money to our son. What do you suggest?

Dear Amanda: The sensible thing to do might be to take the trip. You can argue that you've certainly earned it and your son is young and will doubtless have other chances. However, it isn't what I would do under the same circumstances, and I'm sure it isn't what you will do. You wouldn't really enjoy the trip anyway. And who ever said that parental love should always be sensible? I hope your son truly appreciates the sacrifice and is able to return the money in time for you to take that long-dreamed-of trip.

Dear Dorothy Dix: My mother, who is a widow, goes with a man who is very good to us children at home, but the married children don't like him. It means losing the married children a rife man she loves, please help her make the choice. Phyllis.

Dear Phyllis: Since the married sons and daughters have found their happiness they have no right to interfere with your mother's future. Unless, of course, they have very good reasons for their dislike of mother's friend. Mom should make the choice that is best for her and the youngsters still at home.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I've been going with my for three years and, although she says she loves me, I doubt it. She goes to dances and shows with other boys when I have to work. Now she wants me to finance her way through secretarial school. If she loves me so much and wants to get married, why does she want to go to school? Do you think she is taking me for a ride? — Hank

Dear Hank: Yes, and unless you are a philanthropic Mr. Bountiful, you won't go along for it. If Ivy really wants an education, she can work, and go to school nights — a time honored American custom that is winning more and more recruits every year. Her primary interest at present seems to be a good time. Don't contribute to it.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I'm a real hep cat. I play the guitar and all the girls mob me. Although I can get a date with any girl around, I can't get one to go steady with me. — Corny

Dear Corny: Probably no girl has the heart to take you out of circulation. Good-looking guitar players belong to the world and are to be monopolized by any one creature.

Send your problem to Dorothy Dix. Be sure to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and address her in care of this newspaper.

NEW YORK (AP)—Inside every Hollywood actor today there is a producer struggling to get out.

Producer Gregory Peck has just emerged from actor Gregory Peck. With his partner, William Wyler, he has just produced a blockbuster Western.

It is in color and it cost four million dollars.

The actor who worked briefly as Barker at the New York World's Fair in 1939, is now on a large-scale nationwide promotion tour for his picture.

"It's getting to be the thing for actors to do now," said Peck, smiling. "What we do is like the old-time pitchman, except we go in for the soft-sell manner."

Basically what has happened is that the major studios now often just put up the money for a package picture deal. The studios take a minor share of the profits, and the artists take the major share.

"There is always a day of reckoning," said Peck. "Just as

BERLIN (AP)—The head of the University of Jena has fled to West Berlin amid preparations by the famed German school for an international celebration of its 400th anniversary.

Refugee officials said Josef Haemel and his wife came to West Berlin Thursday and asked for political asylum.

Principal universities of both the Western and Communist worlds have been invited to attend the Jena celebration starting Aug. 31, but Haemel's flight may discourage some of the non-Communist institutions.

VENICE, Italy (AP) — Poland today withdrew from the Venice Film Festival because the operators of the movie festival refused to ban a picture the Warsaw government objected to.

The movie is "The Eighth Day of the Week."

Last week Poland asked that the film be withdrawn, saying it did not give a proper picture of youth in present-day Poland. The organizers rejected the request, saying the selections by the festival's international jury were final.

The festival opens Sunday, "The Eighth Day," which has

BONN, Germany (AP)—A German spokesman confirmed today that French Premier Charles de Gaulle and Chancellor Konrad Adenauer will meet Sept. 14. It will be their first meeting. They will get together at De Gaulle's home near Paris, a government spokesman said.

DOMODOSSOLA, Italy (AP) — Torrential rains fell in northern Italy today, causing floods and landslides and marooning tourists. At Bagnasco, health resort town, about 2,000 tourists, residents and patients at the local baths were marooned because of flooded roads.

off. You have to put everything you have into anything to get good results."

His thoroughness has paid off well. Most of his 28 pictures, Peck started in 1949, a slip from the start—have done well at the boxoffice.

"Every man has a creed he lives by, whether he ever puts it into words or not. Asked to name his, Peck hesitated, then said:

"Do good work; try to grow in spirit; find something and remember God. They're the oldest laws in the book, but they stand up."

the withdrawal. Secretary of State Dulles, seldom sunny about the Middle East, warned it would be folly to think the simple resolution by itself solved Middle East problems. For example:

Hussein asked for the British troops to save him from overthrow. It's been reported that once the British left he'd be assassinated or expelled. How does the Arab plan protect him if the British go? It doesn't say. Yet he approved it.

Eisenhower proposed a U.S. police force in Lebanon and Jordan to keep peace. The Arab plan says nothing about such an outside force. That seems to leave the door open for all the shenanigans to start as soon as the Americans and British leave.

True, the Resolution says the Arabs renew an old pledge among themselves not to be aggressors against one another. But they forgot about the pledge before and that's what caused the trouble this time. No reason to think they won't forget again.

For example: What reason is there to think United Arab Republic President Nasser, trying to bring the whole Arab world under his wing in one way or another, will stop his intrigue. To think he will sounds like a fairy tale.

But if the Americans and British withdraw — and after the present mess they'll be reluctant about going into the Middle East again — Nasser ought to himself.

And since the Soviets want Western influence in the area eliminated, the Arab resolution must taste like duck soup to them.

The resolution also called on Hammarskjold to try to work out with the Arabs some plan for a redevelopment institution. Eisenhower had proposed such an organization, to be run by Arabs. It will take a lot of time to work out anything like that.

"The Ten Commandments", probably the greatest motion picture ever made, will be shown at the Dixie Drive-In in Hope, through September 3. Heading a cast of many thousands are Charlton Heston, shown above as Moses, Yul Brynner, Anne Baxter, Edward G. Robinson, John Derek and Debra Paget. Seeing this tremendous production under the stars at the Dixie Drive-In is truly an impressive sight and a picture made for the entire family. Admission: $1.25 for adults, 50 cents for children aged 6 to 12, with children under 6 free. You'll be glad you saw it!

Arkansan Held in Confidence Game

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—An Arkansas man was charged here yesterday with operating a ram and turkey confidence game. Police said he recruited nearly 50 persons into a meat-selling scheme.

Maddrey said Aldridge had run an ad in local newspapers asking for sales people to take orders for turkeys and hams which would be delivered on holidays and special events.

He gave his firm's name as the Holiday Meat Co. of Cincinnati, Ohio. Maddrey said no such firm exists.

Mrs. Betty K. Elliot of Raleigh told police she answered the ad, but Aldridge told her his name was John W. Spence. She said the man told her the people he hired must pay him $25 to $50 each to cover their bonds. Police said 49 persons had been recruited as salesmen.

Aldridge was booked on charges of fraud, beating his hotel bill, vagrancy and improper registration in a hotel. He was held on $10,000 bail.

Chapter XXIII

The coffee had just finished perking when the phone rang. Hal answered it and heard Helen's familiar voice on the other end of the line.

"I'm sorry, honey, but I have to work late tonight. We got a big shipment of new things today and Miss Valerie insists we must do the inventory tonight so we can unpack them tomorrow. I'll be home later."

He could have shouted his relief. Talk about luck. Now he wouldn't have to worry about keeping her from leaving.

"That's tough honey," he said. "Don't work too hard."

"Sure, don't worry. I'll eat something a little later, and then I think I'll turn in. I had a rough day."

"How do you feel today?" He felt a sharp flash of anger. What she wanted to ask was, was he still scared stiff, but he controlled himself.

"I'm fine. Just a little tired, like I told you."

"All right, dear. I'll see you later."

"Bye." He hung up with a smile.

His plans seemed foolproof. Helen kept the car most days, because he could almost always use the service truck if he had any errands. Last night, however, they had left the truck at the shop because they had stayed downtown for dinner. Usually when they did that, she took him to work and then went to her job, but he had a logical reason to give her for keeping the car in the morning.

A new account, he would tell her, and he wanted to make a good impression. It would look better if he had the car, instead of driving up in a service truck. As he thought of everything, it was hard to kill time. There was the evening paper, and television, but neither could hold his interest for long. Finally, it was eight o'clock and he decided to go to bed.

He got ready for bed and was brushing his teeth when he happened to glance at Helen's sleeping tablets. The label said, "Take one before retiring." He poured three of them into his palm and got a glass of cold water.

"He climbed into bed and forced himself to relax. The tablets were quick acting; inside of 10 minutes he was asleep, and he knew nothing until the following morning."

When he finally opened his eyes, he remembered.

Helen was by his side, breathing easily, her face hidden in the crook of her elbow. He eased his way out of bed and went to the bathroom. The face reflected in the mirror was a temperance worker's horrible example.

His eyes were swollen and bloodshot, and his whole face seemed to sag as if he had added 20 years during the night.

He swallowed a couple of aspirins and went to the kitchen. Aspirin and lots of coffee, or I'll never be able to make it to the front door, let alone across the mountains.

He was on his third cup of coffee when a sleepy-eyed Helen joined him. She wasn't fully awake, but was nonetheless fully alert in her languid, yellow-pale, there was no denying the girl had style sense and he wondered in passing if she had chosen yellow because it went well with the green of the kitchen.

"I smelled the coffee. It waked me even before the alarm."

"Couldn't you sleep?"

"I got plenty of sleep. It was just a little after eight when I turned in. Did you finish the inventory for the store?"

"Oh yes. Actually, taking the inventory isn't much trouble, it's waiting around while she examines each thing for stains or rips, and listening to her complain when she finds one that is nerve-racking."

"You should look for another job. Ready for your coffee?"

"Mmmmm," she answered. "I can't seem to wake up this morning. Maybe I'd better take a cold shower. Madame wouldn't like it if I weren't on my toes."

"O.K., but make it quick, will you?" Hal said carefully. "I want to get an early start. Hardison is thinking of air-conditioning his plant. I'd like to catch him before he gets too involved with other stuff. Have a better chance of selling him that way."

"Hurry. You want the car?"

"Might be better. Good impression and all like that."

Verhey's voice had been steady, but his knuckles showed white as his hands clenched around the cup. He didn't like to tell her such a barefaced lie, even though it was necessary. She was a good kid and he loved her. At least he loved her more than any other woman he had ever known.

She had worked hard while he had been in prison, saving every dime so he would have a stake when he got out. He had been able to study air conditioning while he had done his time, and planning for a business of his own, where no one could ask him questions. Was all that had kept him sane. She had even gone to work for him.

He worked so he could get started, and then so he would have enough money to branch out into home appliances.

She had done all that without complaint, and when she found out he had gone it could hurt her. To cause her pain was the last thing in the world he wanted, but he just didn't have what it took to stay.

Chapter XXIV

They talked of the usual things as they drove downtown. What would be nice for dinner now, how was Ernie working out at the shop, and hope you have a good day.

He let her out at the corner of Pine and Walnut and sat watching as she walked up the street with her graceful stride. When she was out of sight, he swallowed hard, put the car in gear and drove toward the appliance store.

It was early, so he could be there and gone before the office girl and servicemen arrived.

He let himself in the back way and went directly to the rest room where he changed into the cotton pants and shirt. He had forgotten to bring a hanger so he had to roll up his good clothes. They'd be wrinkled, but it couldn't be helped.

He stepped into the store and looked through the front window. No one was watching, so he hurried to the safe and opened it. There was no time to count the money, but there was quite a roll and it was all in small denominations. That was good. He wouldn't have any trouble changing it.

After stuffing what he could in his wallet and putting the rest of it in various pockets, he went to the office girl's desk.

It was a smart move to leave a note. With a note to calm their fears, no one would start looking for him until Helen sounded the alarm, and he was sure that once she knew he had gone, she would give him a good start.

He tore a sheet from the scratch-pad, picked up a ball-point pen, and began to write.

"Dear Kay: Have a chance to bid on some damaged appliances, so may not be in today. Have taken the money from the safe. Please ask Ernie to take as many calls as he can, and I'll see you tomorrow. H.V."

When the note was finished, he went to the back door, turned and took a long look at the gray-shaded refrigerators, washers and other electrical gadgets, then went out and locked the door behind him.

All the way out of town and even on the highway, he drove with excessive care. The road was covered by radar, and he was in no position to be stopped. Every sign or signal received his undivided attention, even though the urge to tromp on the gas was strong.

It was only about 25 miles to old John Warren's garage, but the trip seemed to take forever.

The old man had been one of his first customers when he had gone into business and they had remained friends. He was an opinionated old differ, but with proper handling Hal thought he could get him to change cars with him. He was an expert mechanic, and usually all you had to do was mention that something was the matter and he was off, wrench in hand.

Finally, he spotted the sign marking "Warren's Service" and pulled up by the neat-shed building. John was just unlocking the pumpkins when he pulled in.

"Hi, old-timer," he called as he got out.

The older man looked for a moment, then smiled and came toward him, hand outstretched. "Hi! Good to see you. Didn't recognize you at first, without those fancy duds of yours."

He was about 65 and very stooped. His face was wrinkled, but very red-checked. The red was half from the mountain air and half from last night's rye.

Hal forced a grin. "I'm a working man today. Ernie, my serviceman, is sick, and I've got to make a call at the grocery in Sultana. This freezer is on the blink and I have to get there and get it fixed before the food spoils."

"Well, John said soberly, 'I never heard of food not spoiling just so a teller can stop and visit.'"

Hal punched him lightly on the shoulder. "Don't get gay. I had a reason for stopping. Something's wrong with the car. I'll be driving home later."

"That's all right. I'm not here, just leave the keys in the glove compartment."

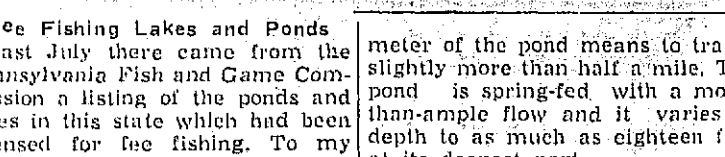

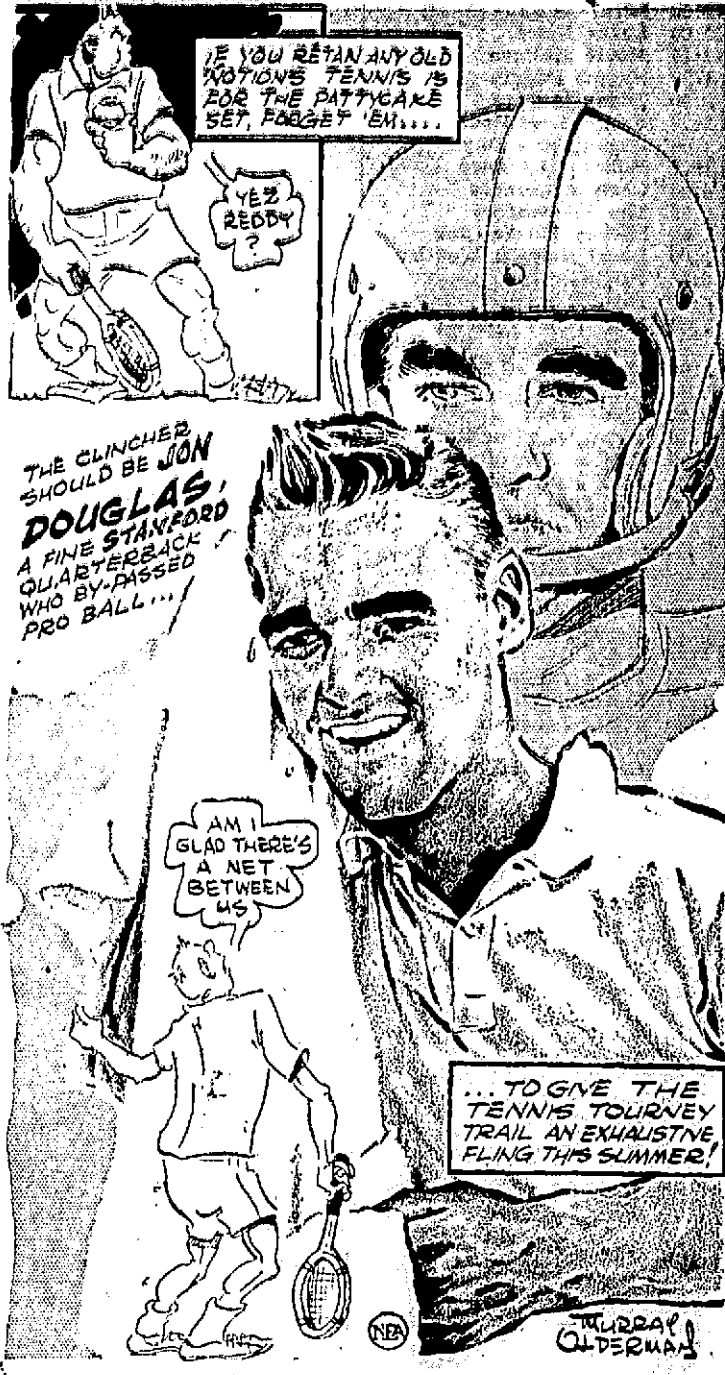

Now that his plan had worked, Hal was impatient to be on his way. The more miles he could put between himself and the cops, the better he'd like it.

"Thanks, John. I'll get my bag and be on my way."

He hurried to his own car and got the suitcase and the rolled-up clothes. He flung them in the back seat of John's car and with a brief wave drove off.

ROUGH ENOUGH

Fee Fishing Lakes and Ponds

Last July there came from the Pennsylvania Fish and Game Commission a listing of the ponds and lakes in this state which had been licensed for fee fishing. To my surprise, 198 licenses had been issued. It is quite evident that the idea of fee fishing has taken root every bit as solidly as that of fee shooting — the regulated shooting grounds of game farms.

About 20 years ago, I visited a fee-fishing pond in New Jersey. The pond, a rather small one, was stocked quite heavily with trout, fresh from the hatchery. Catching them was pitifully easy. You simply cast out a streamer fly, hauled in what you wanted to take home, and departed with a mess of fish that were not fit to eat. I was not impressed.

But with the arrival of the listing of fee-fishing ponds, my curiosity was aroused. I knew that there was one of these places out on the Warrensville Road, not ten minutes from my home — Kehler's Fee-Fishing Pond — so I drove out to see what the place was like. Believe me, I was due for a big surprise.

Mr. Clifford Kehler, the owner, was there and he was kind enough to answer questions and show me around the place.

Kehler's pond is, of course, an artificial one, but it covers four and one-half acres of land. There is a level walk, slightly higher than fixed water level, extending around the shores and to walk the perimeter of the pond means to travel slightly more than half a mile. The pond is spring-fed with a more-than-ample flow and it varies in depth to as much as eighteen feet at its deepest part.

It is stocked variously, and I mean just that. In its ample expanse swim brook, brown and rainbow trout, largemouth and smallmouth bass, great northern pike, walleyed pike, white bass, channel catfish, rock bass, bluegill, crappie, and bluegill, thousands of bluegill. These prolific little fellows present somewhat of a problem.

Naturally, I was curious to know how these various varieties managed to live peacefully together in a four-and-a-half-acre pond. Mr. Kehler assured me that they seemed to get along quite well together. The larger predatory fish seem to be content to feed on the regular fish food that he gives them, between times 'helping' of keep under control the increasing supply of bluegill.

Fishing rates are nominal. You check in at the office and pay one dollar plus tax for the right to fish. Then you can fish to your heart's content for as long as you please. The type of fishing you do is up to you. Catch all you please, keep what you want, and release the rest. When you check out, you pay $1.50 per pound for trout and $1.75 per pound for all other varieties. Bluegill you can have for free; no charge on these.

Mr. Kehler feeds his fish with pellets of prepared food, a combination of cereal and meat that gives the fish the balanced diet they need. The food has two interesting qualities. When placed in the water, it floats, thereby keeping the fish in the habit of feeding at the surface; after a few weeks of this feeding, the flavor of the fish is improved, even over that of fish which live altogether on natural food.

In view of the fact that there are too many bluegill in the pond, it makes a wonderful place to take the children. Kids and bluegill seem to go together like hot and cold, and the youngsters can catch all the bluegill they want at an extra charge.

For those who can't get away in the daytime, a battery of flood lights has been installed along the shore so that fishing after dark can be done in comfort and safety.

The number of fish in the pond varies according to season, from 3,000 to 5,000. Rarely is there lack of action of some sort. You can cast from the path along shore or sit comfortably on one of the docks. In short, the sort of fishing you like, from dry fly to bait fishing, is there for you to enjoy.

At the present time, an additional pond for fly fishing only is being constructed and this will be stocked with king-size trout that will give the fly fishermen all the argument he can handle on light tackle.

By and large, the whole setup was a revelation. By this time you may have gathered that my opinions of fee-fishing ponds have undergone considerable revision. Admittedly, it is artificial, but it is interesting and the artificially has been reduced to the absolute minimum. If you haven't tried the fee-fishing ponds, it might pay you to investigate.

Department Store Sales Increase

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Department store sales gained slightly for the fourth straight week in the Eighth Federal Reserve District last week.

Sales last week for the entire district averaged 1 per cent above the same week of 1957. The increase was shared in all major reporting cities except St. Louis, where a 4 per cent decline was reported.

The gains were 5 per cent in Louisville, 9 per cent in Memphis, 3 per cent in Little Rock and 2 per cent in seven smaller district cities combined. The St. Louis Federal Reserve Bank reported today.

For the past four weeks, sales in the district were 3 per cent above the same period of last year, with the gains ranging from 1 per cent in St. Louis to 9 per cent in Memphis.

Paralyzed Mother Gives Up Children

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — A widowed and partially paralyzed mother of eight turned three of her children over to juvenile authorities Thursday.

She said they struck and abused her.

As a result of Mrs. Jewell Pitts' complaint, two girls—Pitts, 14, and Shirley, 12—were placed in a juvenile shelter. Jerry, 10, was returned home with instructions not to "incite" his mother.

Mrs. Pitts, 47, said the three children had troubled her for over a year.

"I'm just afraid if I can't handle them now they'll wind up in real trouble," she said.

Her husband died in 1954.

Mrs. Pitts has another child at home, Billy, 6. She said her four other children had married or left home for work.

Mrs. B. C. Shivers, president of the C.W.F. presided. The meeting opened with the theme song "Evensong" followed with prayer by Miss Mildred Lennix.

Mrs. Shivers introduced Mrs. C. T. Harrison of Little Rock, state secretary of C.W.F. who made a very enlightening and helpful talk on "The Pattern of C.W.F.," comparing it to the ordinary dress pattern.

She then presented Mrs. Garland Wood, who is president of the North Little Rock C.W.F. and she talked about materials to be used in study, worship and missionary services.

Following the meeting, frosted drinks and cookies were served in the social hall.

C.W.F. Entertains State Officer

Christian Women's Fellowship of First Christian Church met on Monday evening at 7:30 at the church with a good attendance.

Mrs. B. C. Shivers, president of the C.W.F. presided. The meeting opened with the theme song "Evensong" followed with prayer by Miss Mildred Lennix.

Mrs. Shivers introduced Mrs. C. T. Harrison of Little Rock, state secretary of C.W.F. who made a very enlightening and helpful talk on "The Pattern of C.W.F.," comparing it to the ordinary dress pattern.

Scouting of Talent Can Be Trying

By VERNON SCOTT

UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Arthur Godfrey's preoccupation with his manly is of small moment to the hopefuls throughout the country what addition for his "Talent Scouts" show. They just want to appear on the program.

Chief talent scout is Mark Russell, a pleasant, gray-haired man, who stomps the nation seeking out suitable Godfrey entertainers.

Russell auditions more than 4,000 would-be stars every year for the freckled Godfrey. Only 150 acts are used.

"Arthur's only instructions are to keep the talent pouring in," Russell explained in a booth overlooking a small stage. He squinted with pain as a soprano almost shattered the microphone.

"I feel sorry for some of these poor people," he added. "But I never discourage them. I audition 23 people a day. Some are terrible, and a few are terrific."

Singer Butcher's "Summer-time" When the sodiano concluded her butchered rendition of "Summer-time" Russell hurried out of the booth with a few kind words and ushered in the next act, an uncomfortable youth who imitated Jerry Lewis.

Russell turned down the volume in the booth.

"In 95 per cent of the cases I have to say 'no.' But, I say it as kindly as possible. The best cities for finding talent are New York, Hollywood and Chicago.

"Naturally, that's because they offer more entertainment jobs. Surprisingly, Toronto, Canada, is a wonderful place for talent."

"Singers comprise 85 per cent of the acts," he said, "with instrumentalists and comedy acts filling out the balance."

"You'd be surprised how many performers arrive unprepared. Some don't bother to bring music for their pianists, other have never even seen the show."

Sings Off-Color Song

Then, as if on cue, a long-haired, solemn-eyed feminine guitar player perched herself in front of the mike and broke out in a folk song that would have raised eyebrows at a stag smoker.

"How she could expect a song like that to be played on the Godfrey show is beyond me," Russell complained. But, over the intercom he asked kindly, "would you try something a little more wholesome please, miss."

The girl responded with an off-key hill-billy number.

"My biggest surprise came in Amarillo, Tex.," Russell said, again tuning down the volume.

"A guy named 'Arizona Dave' applied for an audition and I agreed to see his act. The next day the receptionist called me in the studio to say that Arizona Dave had arrived in the parking lot, and could I hold the audition there."

"When I found Dave I discovered that his horse was a part of the act, an impossibility for the show. Besides," Russell concluded with a twinkle, "the danged horse sang flat."

THE THREE CROSSES

Three crosses on a hill. Each cross means something. They were all intended to mean the same...public recognition of guilt...just punishment for wrong-doing. But look closely! Each has a very different meaning. On one side, the Cross of hopelessness...hard, bitter, — "If Thou art the Christ, save Thyself and us." On the other side, the Cross of Penitence... "Lord, remember me when Thou comest into Thy Kingdom." In the center, the Cross of Atonement... "Today, Thou shalt be with me in Paradise." Before which cross are you bowing? Have you given up in utter despair? Have you thought of your own personal need of repentance...an about-face in life? Then go to church Sunday and kneel once more before the Cross of Calvary...the Cross of Forgiveness...the Cross of Atonement with the God of all the universe...the center Cross.
